Guidelines for Celebration of Engineers' Day

1. Engineers' Day which falls on September 15, every year is the Day of profound significance in the annals of Indian Engineering. On September 15, 1861 was born the Engineering Wizard of India, Bharat Ratna Sir Mokshagundam Visvesvaraya. As a creative genius and a Man of determined action, he revolutionized the entire concept of planning for community welfare. With masterful expositions and achievements, the fields he covered are monumental, out-reaching national frontiers. In this context, the celebrations on this day, rightly called the Engineers' Day as laid down by the Council of the Institution are to be organised in such a way that every Engineers' Day should be a demonstration to the nation, especially to the engineers, to inculcate a sense of gratitude which they hold for Sir Mokshagundam Visvesvaraya.
2. On this day all State Centres and Local Centres of the Institution should hold special meetings specifically devoted to highlight Sir M. Visvesvaraya's Life and exhort the Engineers to follow his footsteps in the overall interest of the engineering in India. The functions on this day should be organised broadly on the following lines :
 - a) Inviting eminent personalities to preside over the function.
 - b) Garlanding the Photograph of Sir M. Visvesvaraya
 - c) Wide publicity through press and other media
 - d) Seminar, Technical meetings etc., based upon the Engineers' Day Theme.
 - e) Popularising the Life and Works of Sir M. Visvesvaraya in schools, colleges and other organisations within the area through lectures, exhibitions etc.,
3. Large number of reprints of the theme paper will be prepared and sufficient number of copies sent to all State/Local Centres for distribution to various Government Departments, Engineering Organisations, Public Sector Undertakings, Engineering Colleges, Polytechnics etc., to create greater awareness of the role of Engineers and the Engineering Profession.
4. All India Radio, Doordarshan and T.V. Channels wherever available, should be approached to give coverage to the function being organised on this day.
